OPENING

An outsider watching the years go by at the University of Arkansas would not notice much change. Every August, students move into residence halls. The Greek rush period passes and new pledges begin the experience. The students look the same to the outsider and seem to do the same types of things. Over the course of the year, they study, throw parties, go to football games, get parking tickets, make relationships and break them just as those before them did. In December and May, graduation takes place and those that gained their degree move on to the next phase of life. To the outsider, the students this year were no different than any other year. To him, the only meaningful change in the university was the addition and subtraction of buildings and the renovations that kept the halls in working order. However, if the outsider simply asked those involved in the U of A, like the professors and the administrators, they would tell him that every year is filled with potential. The goals and expectations of each new class sustain life in the concrete buildings and sidewalks. Without the energy that was invested in the university from each student, the U of A would be a lifeless set of buildings with no intellectual or personal growth. Because the outsider never took the time to invest himself in the university or the students, he never felt the one thing that made the university a living, breathing entity—ambition. The people who chose to involve themselves in the university were those who understood the value and importance of education and the future it provides. The desire to succeed is not a tangible thing that can be seen, but it is felt. When one walked through the halls of the U of A or talked with professors or students, one quickly learned what kept the university growing every year. The fresh batch of ambition that came to the university every August was what caused the academic value of the university to increase each year. Although the students may look the same from year to year, it is the personalities and the desire to succeed that made every student different from each other and from those that went before them. 🌸

Many dreaded August 18 when the residence halls opened and high school graduates became college students out on their own. For some, the thought of living in a small room with another person that they may or may not have known was scarier than the first day of classes. ❀ Many students choose to live on campus while others decided that off campus was better suited for them. ❀ Students moved on campus early to pledge a sorority or fraternity or just to familiarize themselves with the UA before classes began. ❀ Other groups moved early to get ready for the coming year, such as the Razorback Marching Band. ❀ The RMB arrived on campus August 19 for orientation where they met the directors, staff, and upperclassman. But the hard work soon began — and lasted a week. This week was known as Early Week. The 300 members learned how to march an 8 to 5 step in the dreadful fundamental block. ❀ “It’s not that it is bad, it’s just that you face the sun a lot. You pray for the director to blow the whistle so you can turn around and go the opposite way,” said Patrick Pulley, junior marketing major. ❀ During the week, the band learned the pregame show that has been a tradition for many years. ❀ “You really see the freshmen’s eyes get bigger when they have to learn the train and the big A that stretches the length of the field,” said Pulley. ❀ The band had two a days outside and then they all met in the band hall to practice many of the pieces that they played during football season. ❀ “When I call up the fight song for the first time during early week. I get a chill because you know that the football season is upon us,” said Timothy Gunter, director of athletic bands. ❀ Another song that sometimes terrifies the freshmen is William Tell Overture. ❀ “I was so surprised on how fast that piece actually goes,” said Jennifer Colburn, freshman music education major. ❀ The week was not only work, they also had fun too. Tau Beta Sigma and Kappa Kappa Psi, the band sorority and fraternity put on activities, such as miniature golf and a picnic at Wilson Park, for band members to hang out and meet new friends. Instead of going back to their residence halls, they met new people — the most fun part of college.

Eli Manning's rebels rolled into town to take on the Arkansas Razorbacks for Homecoming 2002. ❀ There were many events that led up to the meeting on the field.

❀ There was a parade that stretched along Dickson Street that included many sororities, fraternities, residence halls and organizations that made floats to show their school spirit and to compete for the best float. There was also a pep rally to get not just the team but also the students ready for the game. ❀ "It was great to see how many people were there. Some pep rallies haven't had that many people but for homecoming it was full," said Parker Denson, senior music education major. ❀ Early the next morning the band was at Walker Pavilion practicing for the game. The Alumni band joined in with more than 50 in attendance. ❀ "I really like having the alumni band here especially when we are on the field for halftime and can't play the fight song when we score a touchdown. I thought it was funny to have them sitting down by the Ole Miss fans blasting away," said Denson. ❀ At 11 a.m. the team got off the buses at Broyles Center parking lot. Many fans greeted them as they went into the stadium to get focused before the game. ❀ At halftime the band marched onto the field and played Arkansas You Run Deep in me while the homecoming queen and court were announced. The court included: Queen

Ashley Medlin of Cabot, Amanda Mannat of Brinkley, Emily Abell of Jonesboro, Kristen Allbritton of Fayetteville and Gwendolyn Williams of Magnolia. ❀ "It was a great honor to be on the homecoming court," said Abell. "It adds to my whole college experience."

❀ To put a great finish on a great weekend, the Hogs came through and defeated the Ole Miss Rebels 48-28.

From Old Main and the Spoofers' Stone to the Senior Walk and the Hog Call, the UA campus is steeped in history and tradition. ♣ But that doesn't mean it isn't changing and growing. ♣ During the summer of 2002, the UA spent about $245 million on construction projects, and in the fall, the UA System Board of Trustees approved another $50 million to be added to an existing bond sale to build new facilities on campus and improve existing ones.

In his third annual State of the University Address in September 2002, UA Chancellor John A. White said the university would spend about $642 million on construction and improvements during the next decade. ♣ One major project the university undertook this year was the remodeling of the Science Engineering Building, which was originally built in 1964.

Workers removed asbestos, added an elevator and a sprinkler system and made the building compliant with the Americans with Disabilities Act. ♣ Renovations also began this year on Carnall Hall, the fate of which was the subject of debate for years. The second-oldest building on the UA campus, a former women's residence hall, was on the National Register of Historic Places. Upon completion, the building will become a training facility for students studying hospitality and restaurant management. The building will be renamed the Inn at Carnall Hall. ♣ To start on the $46 million Northwest Quadrant Project, workers first demolished Fulbright Hall, a residence hall that had sat empty for several years. The project called for a new residence hall, dining hall and university health center between Maple and Cleveland streets bounded on the east by Garland Avenue. The project also included the widening of Garland Avenue to four lanes. ♣ And for the athletic department, construction was barely completed on the renovated Donald W. Reynolds Razorback Stadium when work began on the new Bev Lewis Center for Women's Athletics, which is named after the women's athletic director and houses the UA gymnastics team. The Center, located between Barnhill Arena and the HPER, housed the gymnastics team's inaugural season at the UA in January.

Blues & Barbecue

Noisy hogs took to Dickson Street October 3-6 for the 3rd annual Bikes, Blues, and BBQ Motorcycle Festival. It was a celebration of hot motorcycles, great food and smokin' blues; and it benefited a great cause, the Washington County Council on Aging.

✦ "This is the group's largest fundraiser. It helps our program greatly," said Janet Leinebaugh, the director of the Council on Aging.

✦ The festival started early Saturday with a police breakfast at 7 a.m. A poker run sponsored by Tyson Foods started at 8 a.m., and by Saturday afternoon the bikes and festival goers crowded Dickson Street and the Walton Arts Center parking lot. Hundreds of bikers and bike enthusiasts made purchases from vendors in the north half of the parking lot and then listened to blues music in the south part of the lot. Another event that took place was the Action Honda Parade of Power. Motorcycles left the Northwest Arkansas Mall at 1 p.m. headed down Dickson Street. Nearly a thousand motorcycles participated. Organizers said the parade of motorcycles was the largest ever in the state. It stretched the length of the parade route in two rows as motorcycles were still leaving the mall as the first riders turned onto Dickson.

✦ Organizers estimated 30,000 people and 13,000 bikes attended throughout the weekend, and they were not disappointed.

SEPTEMBER ELEVENTH REMEMBERING

Terror. Fear. Anger. Tears. Burning buildings. Suspicion. Pride. Honor. Heroes. September 11, 2001, will live in the memories of students, faculty and staff as the day the world as it had been perceived changed. Americans faced what is best and what is worst about themselves. It was a day that embodied heroism. ✿ The now-immortal words, "Let's roll," were uttered by United Airlines Flight 93 passengers as they stormed the cockpit and crashed the plane into a Pennsylvania field rather than its intended target. The images of dust-covered firefighters raising the American flag over the smoking rubble of the World Trade Center and Pentagon. The quiet, proud sorrow of those who lost loved ones in the attacks or the aftermath. ✿ On September 11, 2002, the one-year anniversary was memorialized. On the national level, politicians and 9/11 heroes were speakers on many talk shows and news broadcasts.

At the university, students placed 1,000 red, white and blue carnations at Fulbright Memorial Peace Fountain. Short speeches were given by Associated Student Government President Stephanie Gosnell, Saad Abbasi of the International Student Organization, law professor Robert Lawrence and Chancellor John A. White. ✿ Some students cried, and others solemnly bowed their heads. Others remembered the day in their own ways at other places. ✿ "Our only hope is to honor those that died by remembering America's loss," White said.

It is 3 a.m. before your huge Biology exam. You are trying to get studying for the big day. ✿ Unfortunately, there is someone in Sound like anything you have experienced before? It is what dorms. From roommates, to resident advisors and resident rewarding or disappointing experience. The perks of living in the campus residence halls were various: students were closer to class and the library, they could eat any time they feel the urge, they did not have parents there to bug and try and run their lives, and students were surrounded by thousands of people from all over the world. The Resident Assistants of the various halls tried to keep the students involved in the hall and campus life. They arranged activities and events that helped students interact with people from all over the globe and make new friends for the adventure into college life. The events varied from constructing a Homecoming float, to walking to the sporting events together. The halls were a place where the resident advisors and directors felt the students needed to feel at home and welcome. Occasionally, the RAs divided the floors into teams and competed for prizes. The competitions ranged from decorating the floors in colors of the holiday, collecting the most clothes for a clothing drive, or the coolest door decorations with the residents' names on them. ✿ However, there were some factors that students disagreed with when it came to dorm life: there were curfews, parking problems, and of course, the food was never like what mom fixed! Once in a while, there were roommate issues and rivalries that the Resident Advisors took charge of and found resolutions for. Being in a place that was a "home away from home" was difficult for some students, and rewarding for others. ✿ Ultimately, residence halls provided memories and friendships that many U of A graduates cherished. The dorm life was a valuable part of the college experience which R.S. Ingersoll phrased it best, "Colleges are places where pebbles are polished and diamonds are dimmed."

As I sit on my new front porch, looking at the shiny new sticker in my hand, my thoughts turn to earlier times at the University. Freshman Orientation, first classes, new student mixers held by RSO groups or student government, trying to get me to meet new people, to make new friends. HYPE Nite, Union Week, Student Health Week. Having seen too many "college" movies in high school, my preconception of what dorm life would be included spacious rooms with crown molding and window seats, people out in the common areas making beer floats or playing strip charades, and a general atmosphere of reverie. This was not exactly the case. It turned out people were too busy moving in their things and adjusting to new surroundings and buying books to even consider who would be on whose team in strip charades. People were not, I recall, too busy to pull the fire alarms, no matter what the hour. I never quite understood that particular fascination. People in high school pull fire alarms to get out of class for five minutes, or to ask a friend test answers. But in a residence hall it just didn't make sense. The general atmosphere, although not quite of reverie, was much louder than expected. Fire Alarms besides, before going away to college, I would never have imagined that such everyday things as clock radios, telephone ringers, or CD players could so easily penetrate walls made of cement. In spite of all those student mixers, I actually did meet some of my present friends during our time in the residence halls, but I digress. I'm sitting on my new front porch, waiting for my friends to come back out (they're in my new kitchen, making beer floats), and I'm admiring the crisp new sticker in my hand. It's in the shape of a shield and it says OFF CAMPUS.

Each year, the University of Arkansas becomes home to hundreds of new students, each faced with a challenge to find that perfect niche. For many, the Greek community offered the ideal solution. ✿ Bound together by common ideals and interests, Greek students joined a home away from home. The Greek community contributed wholeheartedly to nearly every aspect of campus life. Rush activities sparked friendships while pep rallies and parties exuded Razorback spirit in true form. More than the social life, however, fraternities and sororities fostered a learning environment where academic support, extracurricular involvement, and professional contacts could all be experienced under one roof. ✿ Often plagued by the bad-boy image of fraternity life, the men in the Greek community moved milestones to reverse the trend. "We want to bring to the campus a group of men that are going to be both leaders and true gentlemen of whom the community would be proud," said sophomore Daniel Wilson. Sororities, too, professed a similar motto of leadership and service to their peers. For the Greek community, the time spent in college became a quest toward both scholarly achievement and social involvement, all the time striving toward integrity and honor.

The old way of going to college was right out of high school or, usually, not at all. In recent years, though, more and more people are showing the courage and determination to rearrange their lives in order to find a new way. Lisa Mayfield, a 34 year-old education major, returned recently to continue her education. ✿ "I went one and a half semesters right out of high school, then quit to get married and just never returned. I realized I could attend with the help of financial aid, and returned to school three years ago." ✿ This absence classifies Mayfield as a non-traditional student, a term for undergraduates whose education has been interrupted, who are married or have dependents, who work full time, or who are over the age of 25. Approximately 15% of U of A students are non-traditional by age. Consequently, the lifestyles of non-traditional students tend to differ from those of typical traditional undergraduates. Academics must compete with work or the commitment to family, and time is always in short supply. Shakira Scott, who is married with a three year-old son and works part-time, speaks of the challenges. ✿ "Each thing takes up so much of your time and energy that there is rarely anything left over for yourself." ✿ Non-traditional students arrive at that title by any number of routes, but they all seem to be motivated by the same factor: generating opportunities, either for themselves or their families. ✿ "An undergraduate degree can help you take better care of your family," said Scott. "I knew that a degree would get me the kind of job I really wanted."

It Pays to Work

For many students, holding down a job and juggling a full schedule of classes was necessary to pay tuition and bills.

Let's be honest—"work" is a four-letter word, but just because it has three consonants plus one vowel doesn't mean it's all that terrible of a creature. In fact, many University of Arkansas students chose employment of various kinds during the school year for a plethora of reasons. ✦ First and foremost, work equaled money. Most college students would tell you that their economic status as a scholar was one of glorified poverty. Tuition drained savings, leaving little cash for extracurricular activities such as eating out, recreation, and entertainment during the school year. However, it was not unusual for students to take on jobs for more basic necessities: rent, food, tuition, books, or even supporting families. ✦ A popular option for employment were on-campus jobs. The University offered a variety of openings in a colorful array of possibilities, from tending the front desk at a residence hall or scanning ID cards at the HPER. Seth Ingram, a computer engineering major, worked at the University convenience store Club Red for two years. "Having an on-campus job definitely simplifies things," he said. "I work in the morning before classes and when I get off I can simply walk to class. There are days I don't have to even move my vehicle." ✦ Sometimes, working served an even greater purpose for college students. Some chose jobs on or off campus that provided experience for their future careers. Zoology major Laura Thorne recently began an internship in molecular genetics working with timber rattlesnake DNA. "Life sciences have always been my favorite subjects, and I love animals, so this is a pretty nifty job." ✦ So, while at times it might have seemed burdensome and unbearable, working really was a great opportunity for students. The added effort for the responsibility paid out good dividends in the end.

With much higher tuition than Arkansas residents, many international students were in constant financial problems. ❀ Living with the strict set of government rules in addition to dealing with a completely new culture hundreds of miles away from all loved ones gave international students a lot more to handle than the average scared freshman. ❀ But students from each of the 97 countries could attest that it was all worth it. Difficult paperwork was not enough to keep Bolivian Adriana Aranguren from coming to the University of Arkansas. Even though the U.S. was a change from her native Bolivia, Aranguren does like Arkansas. "I like the fact that it is small and that it is peaceful and safe," said Aranguren. ❀ Although the stress and daily life is harder for international students, the International Programs Office did all they could to make life here as fun and easy as possible. From Culture Teams to a Conversation Club to a Friendship Family Program, the IPO not only linked international students with others from their own nation, but also with American students and host families. The link with others who know and understand was what kept many international students from collapsing under the pressure.

Out of ARKANSAS

The study abroad program provided a world of opportunity for any U of A student with the itch to get out of Arkansas for a summer, semester or even a year. Students could spend one month to a year traveling the world while earning credit toward a degree. In addition to these experiences, students gained valuable life skills such as sensitivity to various cultures. In certain instances students even learned to speak a foreign language. Students in virtually every major were eligible to study abroad. ✿ At one time study abroad programs were for the wealthy elite. This was no longer the case in 2003. Federal financial aid such as Pell grants were often available. The U of A also allowed most scholarships to apply toward a study abroad experience. Additionally, there were scholarships solely for study abroad. In past years approximately 65 percent of U of A students received some assistance ranging from travel grants to total funding. It was also possible to study abroad more than once during your college career. Meeting new people, experiencing a different culture were some of the things that study abroad students liked. ✿ "Being exposed to a culture that is more conservative, walking more, throwing less away and turning out the lights when you leave a room are some of the things I liked about my study abroad experience," Rachel Martin said. ✿ Many students who participated in a study abroad program had difficulties adjusting to a new educational system, but the positive aspects of the program always seemed to outweigh the negative ones. From seeing the historical and beautiful European monuments and buildings, to experiencing a less glamorous culture, those who studied abroad came back with a thirst for more travel. Those who participated in study abroad programs were be changed forever. ✿ Junior history major David Terry traveled Europe in the summer of 2002, then went back to study in Cambridge for the entire 2002-2003 school year. ✿ "I enjoy studying abroad because it gives me a broader perspective on the world. Studying abroad has definitely made me love America a lot more!" Like David, students who studied abroad became more open-minded about cultures outside of the U.S., and also became more appreciative of their own unique culture.

TWO NATIONS AT WAR

Students returned to the University of Arkansas this fall amidst the specter of international conflict. Iraq, a long-time thorn in the side of American foreign policy, was the focus of increasing pressure from the United States, its status as an imminent threat to national security rising greatly in a post-September 11th world.

✦ As the fall semester grew older, the situation in the Middle East grew more tense. The administration leveled its gaze at a key figure in the "Axis of Evil," Saddam Hussein, and it seemed more and more likely that the status quo was in for a violent adjustment – one that would occur with or without the support of the international community. ✦ Dissention quickly emerged, both at home and abroad. Liberal senators such as Tom Daschle, while not questioning the volatility of Saddam Hussein, openly wondered whether or not a unilateral disarmament scheme was politically viable. Protestors in cities around the country united in denouncing the prospect of another war in the Middle East. Internationally, foreign governments and citizens resonated with similar reservations, with steadfast support for military action in Iraq coming solely from Great Britain's Prime Minister Tony Blair. ✦ Students speculated widely about the prospect of war. "Ultimately, I expected a war would take place," said Jenny Davis, a senior from Fayetteville majoring in journalism. "However, I didn't anticipate the opposition that has arisen, both in foreign governments and citizens, since the start of the war." ✦ In an attempt to appease the international community, President Bush took America's case against Hussein and Iraq to the United Nations Security Council. A series of resolutions resulted in the re-implementation of inspections of Iraq's arsenal, though they were much abbreviated amidst mounting American and British pressure to act swiftly. Many wondered whether or not the United States was even interested in the outcome of the inspection process. ✦ "I'm not sure any amount of inspection would have convinced Bush that Iraq was not in possession of banned weapons," related Amelia Hall, a junior communications major from Bentonville. "I suspect that by the time U.N. inspections were re-instituted, most of the administration was already committed to a military solution." ✦ After months of brinkmanship, the armed forces were finally called into action in the latter half of March, as a coalition of primarily U.S. and British military forces began the second war with Iraq in as many decades. Students returning from the "sun and fun" of Spring Break were greeted by the "shock and awe" of the early stages of the war effort, poignantly displayed in cable news network broadcasts of a Baghdad shattered and ablaze. ✦ Some students, wrapped up in a progressing spring semester, had little desire to follow the ubiquitous news coverage. "I tried to tune myself out of the intensity of the television broadcasts," Davis replied. "It was almost too much, too often." ✦ With the major aspects of the military conflict fundamentally complete, the focus in Iraq now shifts to the process of rebuilding. Erudition, more than ammunition, will carry influence in this stage of the dispute, allowing universities and their students to contribute their knowledge and skills, rather than just their opinions, to the process of shaping the modern Middle East.

Greek Sing

2009. NO. 1058-059 A NIGHT AT THE GRAMMY'S

The Walton Arts Center showcased a huge success when it exhibited the Greek Sing this year. Many sororities and fraternities practiced for weeks in preparation for the big event. ♣ Sororities and fraternities paired up and then put together shows that combined song and dance. Each group performed for about ten minutes. The performances varied widely, and all were entertaining. This year the Greeks displayed their talents to the songs of Footloose and Jeremiah was a Bullfrog, among others. ♣ Phi Delta Theta and Kappa Kappa Gamma started the show off right when they performed Footloose. Zeta Tau Alpha and Pi Kappa Alpha followed and strutted their stuff to Aerosmith, playing an array of songs from the Lifetime Achievement Award Winners. ♣ The crowd got wild as Delta Delta Delta and Kappa Sigma presented Star and Crescent Lounge Auditions and busted out a performance of New Kids on the Block with You got the Right Stuff, showcasing the exact dance steps from the early 90s. ♣ Although the 90s throwback was a hard act to follow, Kappa Delta and Alpha Gamma Rho met the challenge with their theme of Sugar and Spice You Better Think Twice. This group combined a little Elvis with some fiddle action as they stepped to Devil Went Down to Georgia, with Kappa Delta demonstrating their fiddle skills. ♣ Pi Beta Phi and Sigma Chi followed with Now That's What I call Woodstock. They brought back the 60s as they boogied to Three Dog Night. ♣ Alpha Delta Pi, performing without a fraternity partner, delivered a different angle to Greek Sing. Their original theme was Discover La Namba: a tribute to Cirque du Soleil. With red lights shining and black costumes worn by all, circus-like acts came onto the stage as some of the performers roller skated and hoola-hooped, while the rest danced to a new wave of music. ♣ Chi Omega and Sigma Phi Epsilon finished off the night with a presentation of Disney Through the Years. They played Under the Sea from the Little Mermaid and Whistle While You Work from Snow White, among others. ♣ During intermission, the hosts of the show, Jon and Jen from Hot Mix 101.9 gave away gift certificates to Noodles to who ever could sing the tune to Gilligan's Island. They also gave away a gift certificate to Chili's to a Tri-Delt that successfully sang the Brady Bunch theme song. ♣ Judges were present at the event, and scored each performance. Pi Phi and Sigma Chi took 3rd place as Chi-O and Sig Ep claimed the 2nd spot. AD Pi swept the night as they took 1st prize for their flashy Cirque de Soleil theme.

✿ AD Pi wowed the audience with an incredibly complex tribute to Cirque du Soleil. Their originality won over the judges as well, since AD Pi took home the first place prize by a wide majority.

✿ Chi Omega and Sigma Phi Epsilon also were crowd favorites with their presentation of a Disney-themed sing-along complete with costumes and faux-dwarves. Although well-rehearsed and imaginative, Ariel had to settle for second place.

✿ The night's opening performance was Phi Delta Theta and Kappa Kappa Gamma's interpretation of "Footloose". We can only hope the 80s come back no further than this.

Let THE GAMES BEGIN

Now in its 70th year of existence, Derby Days has become one of the premier fundraising and philanthropic events in the UA Greek system. ♣ The week-long event, which began this year in late March, featured a blood drive, athletic relays, performing arts competitions and campus-wide social events, said Brock Gearhart, president of the Sigma Chi fraternity, which hosts the annual event. ♣ Derby Days began at the University of California-Berkeley in the spring of 1933, when members of the Alpha Beta chapter sponsored an event composed of humorous skits called the "Channingway Derby," according to the Sigma Chi web site. ♣ Sororities became involved in the event in 1935, when members of the Beta Sigma chapter at Tennessee organized an all-day track and field competition between the school's sorority pledge classes. ♣ Since then, the competition has broadened and the philanthropic coverage has grown exponentially as the tradition of the Derby builds, Gearhart said. ♣ To maintain the national fraternity's focus of "serving the community," the week began with a campus-wide blood drive sponsored by the American Red Cross. Fraternity and sorority members across campus along with many other UA students, faculty and alumni donated hundreds of units of blood, Gearhart said. ♣ The fraternity also donated thousands of dollars from sorority entrance fees and event advertising revenues to the Children's Miracle Network, Sigma Chi's national philanthropic focus, Gearhart said. ♣ The local and national efforts have not only benefited charities but have extended the UA's ability to enrich the surrounding community, Gearhart said. ♣ "Derby Days has helped to position Sigma Chi as a recognizable name on the UA campus," Gearhart said. "Not only is it a great opportunity to benefit both local and national charities, but it is also a perfect time for gathering with friends. The friendly competition at the relay events is a great way to forget about classes for a short time and have fun for a good cause." ♣ After a week of charity work, the Derby Days commenced with a skit night and the relays. Each sorority, along with their "coaches," a group of Sigma Chi members who help each team, prepared a theatrical performance to be judged by members of the Pan-Hellenic council. Those scores, combined with the team's performance in the relays, are used to select the winner. The women of Delta Delta Delta were this year's winners. The pride associated with winning Derby Days is accentuated by the longevity of the tradition at the UA, Gearhart said. ♣ "Derby Days is so special because of its long-standing tradition at the UA," Gearhart said. "Many students who attend the UA have both parents and grandparents who participated in Sigma Chi Derby Days. Whether it's finding the derby, winning skit night or running away with the title at the relay events, Derby Days is second to none in providing a fun week for a good cause. A tradition for more than 70 years, Derby Days will continue to provide memories for the UA student body for years to come."

DAYS

The University of Arkansas had quite a Martin Luther King Celebration this year. Actor James Earl Jones came to campus to lecture on culture and the arts in America. Jones spoke of the need for cultural awareness in America, his childhood, his mentors, his life's work and the struggles he has had to overcome. Born January 17, 1931 in Mississippi, Jones suffered from a stuttering problem as a child and took up acting to help him get rid of it. He earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor and soon began a career on Broadway. In 1959, he won a Tony award for his role as a prizefighter in The Great White Hope. He later reprised the role on film and in 1971 was nominated for an Academy Award for the role. Jones gained widespread fame as the voice of Darth Vader in the Star Wars films. He also starred with Kevin Costner in the award winning film Field of Dreams. His rich, melodic voice can be heard doing voiceovers for CNN and as the voice of King Mufasa in Disney's The Lion King. Jones's visit was part of the Martin Luther King week celebration and was sponsored by the MLK Celebration Committee and the Distinguished Lecture Series.

Spring break is usually the highlight to the spring semester, and many students spend the weeks leading up to the break deciding where to go— and then saving up for it. Many took the week to travel to warmer climates with family or friends. Others who were not able to splurge on a trip, spent the time working in Fayetteville or traveled home to stay free with the folks. Most students used the break to get as far away from scholastic work as possible. However, this was not the case for a group of students who combined university study with the beaches of the Bahamas and were rewarded with one credit hour toward their degrees. ✿ The University of Arkansas offers spring break field trips through the Geology department, and any university student can go, as long as they are signed up for the corresponding spring semester class. Senior Ryan Henry visited the Bahamas while on a U of A spring break field trip; he was able to learn about his field of study in a much more exotic location compared to Fayetteville, AR. ✿ The field trips visit geologically unique sites including the Grand Canyon, Padre Island, TX, and the Bahamas. The students in the classes meet once a week during the spring to discuss the sites they will be visiting over spring break. One hour of credit is earned by going on a field trip. The students also have the option of writing a paper on a topic related to the trip, and they then present their paper to the students and professors at the field trip site. ✿ Henry, an Earth Science major, wrote a paper on what causes daily tides, which he then presented while in the Bahamas. "You're in shorts and sandals in a beautiful environment and are talking about geology," explained Henry. The trip allowed students to experience their studies in a hands-on environment. The twenty-seven students (along with professors Doy Zachry and Walter Manger) saw how limestone is formed, learned about the glacial periods related to the ice ages, and observed sand dunes, beach rock and shells and observed coral reefs while snorkeling. At night, the students would meet to discuss what they had learned that day and to listen to paper presentations. The students also had to keep journals about their daily activities. ✿ "Geology is learned by the soles of your shoes, not by the seat of your pants," said Henry. He explained how the trip confirmed his interest in Earth Science. It proved to him how important hands-on learning is to make education interesting and fun!

✿ Senior Ryan Henry, an Earth Science major, spent spring break with other UA students in the Bahamas. The group received college credit for the geology research they did there.

✿ The group piles in the truck that took them to their research site every day. Although the students spent a lot of time on shore digging, they found plenty of time for daily snorkeling trips.

Springfest ON DICKSON

Saturdays on Dickson Street (well, mornings and afternoons at least) are usually quiet. There are people wandering the streets, skateboarding, eating at the restaurants, shopping at the various stores. There's plenty to do, but it doesn't get really exciting unless the seasons are changing. Why? Because when spring comes, its time for Springfest. ♣ On April 19th this year, Springfest was quite exhilarating with all the wind and misting rain. People ran after flying tie-died t-shirts; and there was even a rumor about a couple of barbeque sandwiches randomly taking flight in the wind. But the wind and rain didn't stop the Springfestivities. ♣ The music started right at 9 a.m. and went all day on five different stages. And, all of it was free. The beds went flying down Dickson during the annual bed races. (Note to the concerned: no tie-dyed shirts harmed this year in the event.) And let us not forget the food. One couldn't walk ten feet without smelling corndogs or cotton candy. After being contented with the appetizer of choice, one could go to the petting zoo. (They say its for kids, but who doesn't want to pet a baby goat?) ♣ The construction of the new curbs made Dickson a bit hard to navigate in places, but the booths crammed in tight with plenty of crafts and temporary (airbrushed!) tattoo artists. If you caught one of the stages at the right time, there were even some martial arts demonstrations, Irish and swing dancing and more. ♣ Springfest was just one of the ways students could have fun on a tight college budget here in the heart of the Ozarks.

Bands on

Although class, studying, and projects have their kicks, many students like to unwind after a long day of hitting the books by taking a night out on the town. Dickson Street was a very popular night life scene for the city of Fayetteville and students at the U of A. There were many places to choose from, such as Grub's, Dave's, JR's, Jose's, and more. Some of the big bands that came this year included Better than Ezra, The Kicks, and Ultimate Fakebook. ♣ Mitchell Ross, a sophomore business major enjoyed going to Dave's on Dickson to see many of the bands that played there. He liked seeing shows at Dave's because "they have plenty of room and the stage is laid out nicely." Mitchell said his favorite concert of the year was seeing "The Kicks and Welton at JR's." ♣ Justin Froning was a member of the band Without a Star. This band was one of the most frequent visitors to the Dickson Street concert scene. Almost every weekend, Without a Star could be found playing at one of the local pubs or music halls. Without a Star was composed mostly of U of A students, and they had played alongside bands such as Alkaline Trio, Nada

Dickson

Surf, and Superdrag. All four members of the band were Christians, Justin said he just wants to "spread the message that you can have fun and still be a Christian." ♣ Jose's, a contemporary south of the border restaurant on Dickson, often played host to performers who carried more ethnic diversity. Here, one could find Flamenco guitarists, Latin vocalists, and belly dancers. Somenights one could even find a combination of them all. Joes's stage was outside, providing a secret garden atmosphere that made it that much easier to let go and unwind after a hard week of hitting the books. ♣ Ultimate Fakebook was one of the bands that always drew a crowd every time they came to Dickson. The band was originally from the Arkansas region, so Little Rock and Fayetteville were always big stops on their tour. ♣ Dickson Street's combination of a convenient location, plethora of exciting establishments, and stimulating atmosphere made it a prime place for U of A students. Whether one's tastes lie in Latin grooves or punk rock, Dickson Street was the place to be.

The Fantastical Five U of A Student Media

The heart of the campus is the student media. "The student media allows us to have mass communication among the students," said Steve Wilkes, director of student media. ♣ The student media at the UA includes the Razorback yearbook, The Arkansas Traveler, KXUA 88.3, UATV Channel 2 and Arxarc Review, the literary magazine. "We are a big part of the glue that holds the campus together," Wilkes said. "Our culture depends on mass communication. Students, faculty and staff depend on the student media to get UA-focused information." ♣ The student media fee provides the funding for the five media. For the 2002-2003 school year, the fee was 61 cents per credit hour. In other words, if a student took 16 credit hours in a semester, he would pay $9.76 for the student media fee. That's less than a meal at a sit-down restaurant or about three beers at most local bars. ♣ To the students who work in student media, the experience is important. "It would be extremely hard—if not impossible—for us journalism majors to find work after graduation if not for the UA Student Media," said senior Denise Malan, editor of The Arkansas Traveler. ♣ "The five media allow student journalists to find their niche and then practice as much as they want. Many students are involved in more than one media—The Traveler, UATV and KXUA, for example --and all the media work together to provide an invaluable service for the UA community." ♣ But journalism majors aren't the only ones who work with the student media. "We have quite a number of non-journalism majors involved," Wilkes said. "They get a picture of the mass media. It's the real practical side."

♣ "It's impossible to imagine our campus without it," Malan said.

Thrill of the RACE

Outside the classroom, professors often have interesting hobbies besides grading student papers and devising tough lesson plans. Dr. Mark Cory, the Director of the European Studies Program, Comparative Language, and a professor of Foreign Languages, has a unique hobby of collecting, restoring and racing British sports cars. His passion for British cars began in high school when his father bought a 1954 Austin Healey. Dr. Cory learned to drive in this two-seater open sports car while living in California. He and his dad would go to rallyes (the British spelling) where up to 200 cars would meet to receive complicated instructions to reach a final destination. Dr. Cory would act as the navigator through the windy back roads. ♣ Today, Dr. Cory races his 1960 Austin-Healey Sprite in vintage car races. The cars have to be at least 25 years old, and the races are held on closed purpose-built courses. The closest course to Fayetteville that Dr. Cory races at is in Hallett, OK. "There are no prizes or trophies and no pretty girls to kiss . . . and one hopes no crashes," said Dr. Cory as he explained about vintage racing. Dr. Cory races strictly for satisfaction. "It's absolutely thrilling!" he exclaimed. ♣ Dr. Cory had to develop his own racing skills, and he was required to go to driving school before he was allowed to race. He has also learned how to improve and modify his car for racing. Dr. Cory does all of the bodywork and painting himself. He once took a welding class at Fayetteville High School to increase his knowledge and skills. ♣ After competitively racing against other drivers, Dr. Cory enjoys how the racers go out to dinner afterwards and share racing stories. "Part of the sport is learning to fix what's broken, and part of the joy of the sport is the helpfulness of the racers," said Dr. Cory.

✿ Being a racecar driver isn't all excitement, though. Dr. Cory's cars, as well as the garage in which he restores them, require a great deal of maintenance. The shop must be in some semblance of order just to find anything, and older cars need constant attention to keep them in running and looking like new.

OUR LEADERS

UA administrators face many challenges but find many rewards while carrying out their various roles within the campus community. ❁ For example, Bob Smith, UA provost and vice chancellor for Academic Affairs, said fostering understanding of university goals while working with the day-to-day aspects of academics and the growth of the UA presents a unique challenge. Smith must understand what faculty and students aspire to and need, he said. ❁ "The personal learning challenge enmeshed in such an objective is one of the most satisfying aspects of my post – when I am able to face the challenge well," Smith said. ❁ Smith spends 70 to 90 hours during a typical week, he said, in meetings, checking e-mail, writing speeches or papers for the All Things Academic journal or working with the 2010 Commission or the newly created Honors College, for which he is interim dean. ❁ Transit and Parking Director Gary Smith faces challenges of his own – trying to plan parking lots and transit routes for the future and trying to increase funding for the department. In his fifth year as director, he said the most challenging aspect is not having the resources to provide the number of parking spaces and the transit service the community would like, but his most memorable moments are the times when he can meet with students to explain what the department does and why, and listen to their questions and suggestions. ❁ As dean of students and associate vice chancellor for Student Affairs, Brian O. Hemphill, deals directly with students on several levels -- emergencies, student meetings and any complaints or concerns students might have. The hardest part of Hemphill's job, he said, is making calls to parents to tell them of tragedies or challenging situations regarding students. But since he came to the UA in summer 2001, he has also found many more positive aspects to his position. ❁ "I enjoy witnessing students entering the university as wide-eyed, first-year students and personally observing their growth over a four-year period," Hemphill said. "We have an opportunity to truly make an impact on the world by giving our students many gifts that will last a lifetime. ... It is important for students to understand that I am here to ensure that they have a phenomenal experience from orientation to graduation." ❁ Hemphill's job allows him to deal directly with students, but other administrators impact students' lives from behind the scenes. Don Pederson, associate vice chancellor for Finance and Administration, makes decisions about personnel, facilities, finances, safety, policy and procedures. Although he said he is challenged by lack of resources and personnel conflicts, he is glad to have the opportunity to provide innovative solutions to issues that affect teaching and research on the UA campus. ❁ "Education is not a cost; it is an investment," Pederson said. "The more a student invests in both their tuition to buy quality education and in time spent learning, the bigger the return to the student will be over their lifetime."

SUPPORT STAFF

To UA students who frequent their department's office, they're some of the most familiar faces on campus — secretaries, assistants and other support staff who solve problems while keeping up with the day-to-day tasks to keep offices and the campus in working order. ♣ The hustle and bustle in departmental offices around the UA campus would be impossible without the hundreds of support staffers who work to help professors and students with almost anything they need. ♣ Kathy Tate, a secretary in the math department, said the office is a busy place. "There's about 10 things going on at once that you've got to keep an eye on," she said. ♣ Tate is the assistant to Allan Cochran, the math department vice chairman. As such, she keeps records for the 140 undergraduates majoring in math. During advising periods, she pulls advising folders for all the students and updates their records with degree audits and keeps track of the students who have seen their advisers. ♣ But advising period is not the busiest time of year for Tate. "Override season is most busy," she said. "When classes are full and everyone needs overrides ... there are two lines and two of us working them. There are about 10 people working in the office, and it can get pretty hectic." ♣ During other times of the year, Tate works with professors, completing any typing they need, ordering textbooks for their classes and answering phones. ♣ "It's all a challenge; it changes daily," Tate said of her job, which she has held for more than two years. "It's a wonderful place to be. I wouldn't want to be anywhere else." ♣ Sherry Sparks, who has spent three years as a secretary in the philosophy department, also does "a little bit of everything" — copying, faxing, mailing, answering phones and running errands. She said camaraderie is the best thing about her job. ♣ "Everyone is so friendly here," said Sparks, who has spent another seven years working other jobs at the UA. ♣ Tate also said she enjoys working in the math department office. "The math department is like a family," she said. "Everyone looks out for everyone else. ... It's just really amazing. It's genuine; it's not fake." ♣ Secretaries and office workers are not the only UA staff that often goes unnoticed or unappreciated. Hundreds of Physical Plant and Housing staff employees, library staff, telephone operators and countless others work long hours to keep the university running smoothly. ♣ Without the dedication of these workers to keep the university clean and in working order, it would be difficult for faculty and students to do their job — teach and learn.

The 50th anniversary of the German-American Fulbright Education Exchange Program took place on Monday, October 21, 2002. Celebration of the program comprised a full day of activities and ended with the dedication of a bronze statue by Gretta Bader of J. William Fulbright on the west side of Old Main. ♣ Fulbright grew up in Fayetteville and was President of the University from 1939 to 1941. He later spent 30 years as a U.S. Senator. In both roles he emphasized the importance of education and participation in the international community. ♣ Hundreds of people crowded into the area between Old Main and Vol Walker Hall to watch the dedication. ♣ Former President William Clinton spoke briefly saying that Fulbright was an important mentor and friend to him. If he had not had the opportunity to work for Fulbright as a young man, Clinton said, he would not have become president. ♣ Wolfgang Ischinger, the German Ambassador to the United States, said the program that Fulbright created has allowed some 30,000 students to travel between the two nations. The terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, were a brutal reminder that such dialogue between nations is essential, he said. ♣ There were many students that attended the ceremony. ♣ "It was interesting hearing Clinton speak and learning more about Fulbright. After the ceremony I asked him to sign my paddle since he is an honorary member of Kappa Kappa Psi, the band fraternity," said freshman Matt Fonken. ♣ Harriet Fulbright, Fulbright's widow, said that her husband would have approved of the statue's location on campus. Fulbright, who died in 1995, always felt that the university gave him the best start he could have had.

Quality Writing Center

Since 1984, the Writing Center has been a free consulting service for students, faculty and staff from all schools and colleges on campus. It served as a resource for any type of writing project. Located in Kimpel Hall, it served more than 1200 students, faculty and staff during the school year. First year English composition students formed the Center's largest client base, while nontraditional and international students were among their most frequent visitors. Writers came from a variety of disciplines and departments. The Writing Center's primary goal was to help those who came to the center become more competent and self-confident writers. The Quality Writing Center worked with people at any stage of a writing project, from narrowing and focusing the topic, developing an effective approach, and organizing ideas to helping with grammar and usage, format and style. Some writers simply wanted a second opinion on a finished draft from an objective reader. Others went in to discuss ideas before starting to write or when reworking a draft. They also consulted on personal statements for graduate and professional schools, resumes, letters of application and publications. Not every student was a great writer, and for those who struggled or needed a little help, the Quality Writing Center was there to lend hand. Having a campus resource like the writing center helped many students throughout the year get their writing assignments completed with a little less stress through the help of the professionals at the Quality Writing Center.

Most students I know observed Martin Luther King Jr. Day by catching up on sleep or extending their weekend activities. I can't even remember what I did on January 20, but I'm willing to bet that three geology students won't ever forget what they were doing the third Monday of 2003. Freshman Sarah Kee, junior Jonathan Gillip, and senior Kevin Morgan were out early looking for small, locally common fossils. They didn't find what they were looking for. What they did find, nestled in a drainage ditch near I-540 and 6th street, has been identified as Rayonnoceras solidiforme, the largest one in the world, measuring 8'2" and missing the last foot. Also called an actinoceratoid nautiloid, the fossil was a squid-like creature which would have lived in the front of a large shell. It had tentacles, though no suckers, and used jet propulsion to move about. The one found here in Fayetteville is roughly a foot longer than one found in 1963, previously the largest in the world. One point of interest that scientists feel warrants investigation is the fact that both this new nautiloid and the one from forty years ago are missing the posterior foot.

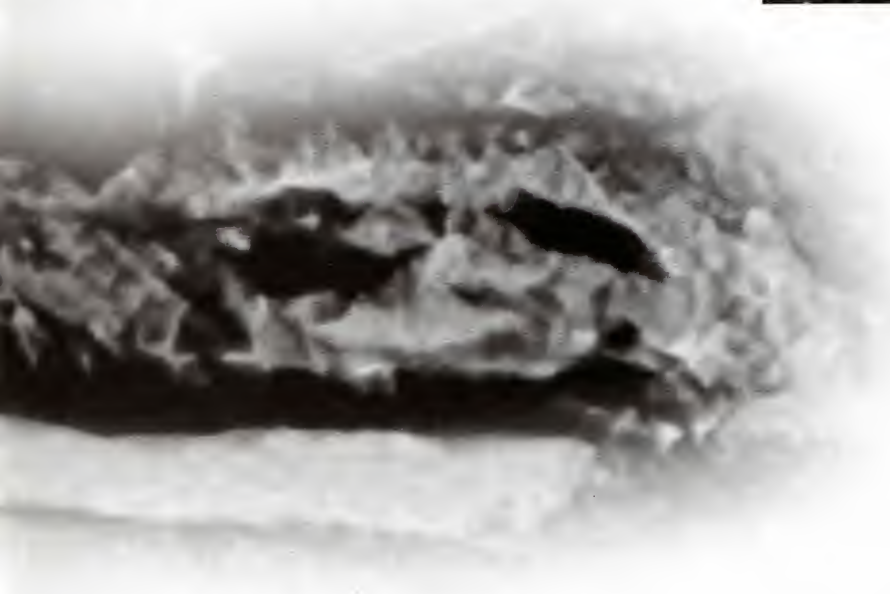

✿ Each of the students involved in discovering the fossil enjoyed their fifteen minutes in the spotlight. All three local network affiliates ran a piece on the fossil, and the find also made its way into Discover Magazine, Time for Kids, and a well-respected British newsletter concerning paleontology. Walter Manger, a professor of geosciences at the University, says of the impact of the find on the world of Geological sciences, "It is far more than I ever expected." The main interest for researchers in this fossil is that it seems to support both the theories of gigantism and sexual dimorphism. It has been installed permanently in the University Museum and will continue to be examined by students and scientists alike.

For the average student, finals week was a stressful time filled with all-nighters and trips to favorite coffee shops like Common Grounds, Starbucks, The Perk or Arsaga's. Many students found that the five or so hours before the exam were the most fruitful for learning material over again, or for the first time.

Fans bustle in and out of seats in constant streams to concession stands, restrooms, other parts of the stadium where friends have better or worse seats. The Student Section is a solid block of red, has been for over an hour, and slowly the more threadbare parts of the crowd are filling in with blankets, foam fingers, facepaint, and funny hats. As the sun moves toward Farmington, Donald W. Reynolds Razorback Stadium gets louder. Anticipation builds until finally it is time! Out they come, taking the field in formations practiced a hundred times, their red uniforms spotless, their instruments gleaming... instruments? ✧ That's right, kids, it's the University of Arkansas Marching Razorback Band, the soundtrack to your football games and the entertainment at your halftimes. The Band is a diverse group of students recruited from across the country and studying in many different areas. Bigger than any sports team, they practice just as strenuously, with no real off-season, while still having to attend all those pesky classes. Band members manage to balance these considerable responsibilities with a social life by way of Kappa Kappa Psi and Tau Beta Sigma, respectively the band-oriented fraternity and sorority. ✧ The Marching Razorback Band played at eight home games between Fayetteville and War Memorial in Little Rock. They also were afforded the opportunity in December to play in Atlanta at the SEC Conference Championship. Mr. Timothy Gunter, the Band's director, was kind enough to let me ride in an empty seat on Band Bus #3 to and from the Georgia Dome. It was during this second trip, from the game, that it occurred to me: the Band doesn't really feel the sting of defeat (or humiliation, in this case) that is felt by the teams they accompany. The occupants of seats around me on Bus #3 were, for the most part, just as chipper as they had been five hours earlier. As long as they play well and no one falls down, the Band always wins. This impression seems confirmed by Mr. Gunter's affection for the students he directs. "I could not be more proud," he said, "of the efforts and accomplishments of the hard-working and fun-loving members of our talented ✿ Spinning her baton energetically around the field, the lead twirler added another exciting element to the band's performance. Although the job of a baton twirler might look easy, it is only because of the team's long hours of practice that they were able to toss their batons and catch them in unison.

First year head coach Dave Van Horn definitely made his debut this year a memorable one. He took over at the end of last season when Norm DeBriyn called it quits after several years with the Hogs. But his success this year was nothing new to him. In recent years he made a powerhouse out of the University of Nebraska while taking them to the College World Series on more than one occasion, before returning to the University of Arkansas to coach the Razorbacks. Toward the end of the season, he had compiled a 34-18 record, with 14-16 in conference play. ♣ Van Horn's team was led by homerun hitter and senior Ryan Fox. Freshman Jason Pyle and junior Andrew Wishy also took on leadership roles as they both earned batting averages of .370 and .330, respectively, the two highest on the team. Juniors Jon Richmond and Boyd Goodner led the pitching duties with having the lowest ERAs on the team, 1.32 and 2.43, respectively. ♣ Arkansas started the season off on the fast foot when they found themselves ranked 27th in the poles. They quickly climbed the charts as they hit as high as 16th with a record of 18-2. Things began to slowly slide for them as they slipped back to the position in the country, but that didn't knock down any of the Diamond Hogs' hopes. During the SEC tournament and hoped to find themselves back where they were last year, just a game away from the College World Series, to settle some unfinished business. ♣ Fans hope Van Horn and the Diamond Hogs can get to the College World Series. Last year, they came within one game without him. Hopefully he can get them to the dance this year. This may be Van Horn's year, and it has definitely left a lasting impression.

HOGS DREAMS

The Lady'Back Basketball team got on the hot streak this year and stayed there—for quite some time. They started the season off with a tremendous 16-2 record, and ranked as high in the national polls at number 9. ♣ They proved worthy of their rankings when they played then number 1-ranked Blue Devils and led nearly the entire game before a few miscues cost them the 74-72-overtime defeat. "We led the whole game, and they took it from us," UA head coach Gary Blair said. "We played a damn good basketball game, and we played like Razorbacks. We didn't give up." ♣ Junior Shameka Christon tossed up 17 points including the 1,000th of her career for the ninth-ranked University of Arkansas Lady Razorback basketball team in a hard battled 60-58 upset loss to Oklahoma State in Stillwater. ♣ The 20-9 record of the Lady'Backs took them to high seeds for the tournament and high hopes for an SEC Title for the program. Things looked to be on the up and up for the Lady'Backs as they outlasted the Alabama Crimson Tide during the first round of the tournament. "It was going to be a game that came down to whoever hit the last shot. We made some tough shots down the stretch," Coach Blair said. ♣ But the luck of the Lady'Backs soon faded as the LSU Tigers downed them in the second round, 78-72. Christon scored a season high 33 points in the effort.

"Shameka made huge plays for us today," said Lewis. "They didn't stop her. We knew that she would make her shot so we had to focus on defense." ♣ The seniors Dana Cherry, India Lewis, and Lakishia Harper had to then sit and wait for their seeding for the NCAA tournament. Grabbing a number 7 seed, Dana Cherry led the team with 18 points in defeating Cincinnati in the first round. ♣ The Razorbacks then faced the Longhorns in the second round but could not overcome the strength of the University of Texas. The game did spark highlights for players though. Christon and Lewis came out firing from behind the arc as the Hogs hit their first five three-pointers on the way to a 6-of-9 first half. ♣ This season started off hot and the Lady'Back Basketball team found themselves where they belonged at the end of the season. In the NCAA tournament. Maybe they were defeated a little too soon in the tournament, but just wait 'til next year.

Many people describe cross-country as an individual sport, each runner fighting their way through the pack in hopes of tearing through the finish line ribbon. Yet, the cross-country Ladybacks' 2002 season gave an entirely new meaning to the sport. Led by three strong seniors and boosted to the top by inspiring freshman talent, the Ladybacks proved how important teamwork actually is. Together, they were able to accomplish a series of impressive feats including a seventh place finish at the NCAA Championships, a 12th South Central Region championship, and their 10th SEC team title. ♣ Ladyback runners faced a dual challenge, simultaneously running toward personal goals and team glory. Senior Christin Wurth, the 2002 SEC league champion, became only the sixth Lady Razorback in school history to earn all-conference honors during all four seasons. Wurth, along with senior Londa Bevins, led her teammates to the top as they arrived at the NCAA Championship. The two seniors placed 16th and 23rd consecutively, each earning All-American status. ♣ As is tradition, the Razorback cross-country team provided their fans with intense entertainment throughout the 2002 season. Despite frustrating setbacks caused by injury and illness, these athletes continued their sprint toward the finish line, sweeping up a multitude of team titles at their crossing, including both Conference and Regional Championships. Their presence at the 10K Chile Pepper Invitational was marked by impressive performances by juniors Alistair Cragg in second place and Daniel Lincoln in sixth with a career-best time of 29:25. Their team victory over 2001's defending champion Abilene Christian University made running in the misty rain all the more worthwhile. ♣ Alistair Cragg accepted an honorable distinction as the 2002 SEC Male Cross-Country Athlete of the Year along with head coach John McDonnell, who for the seventh year in a row, was named cross country coach of the year. As a team, the national tournament ended with an unexpected seventh place finish. Yet, outstanding performances by both Cragg and Lincoln proved that win or lose, a Razorback fights to the finish.

GAINING GROUND

Picked to finish last in the SEC West, the University of Arkansas Razorback football team forcefully made its presence known in 2002, although not without some trials and tribulations. The team had to overcome many obstacles. From less than perfect conduct off the field resulting in arrests and jail time, to the dismissal of a senior team captain, the team made a complete turnaround and produced the best comeback in school history in Little Rock. ♣ Lets recap on the season: Arkansas got off to a winning start of 2-0 after downing Boise State and South Florida. ♣ Disappointing losses came to Arkansas after they fell to Alabama and then to Tennessee in a battle that lasted through 6 overtimes. ♣ Just weeks later, everything came to a screeching halt. Senior co-captain Jermaine Brooks was dismissed from the team after being arrested for possession of drug paraphernalia, weapons and intent to sell illicit drugs. Yet this incident seemed to gel the entire team together. ♣ At homecoming, the Hogs put on a show defeating the Ole Miss Rebels. Yet the show didn't begin until the second half when Eddie Jackson was called for pass interference after intercepting a pass. The crowd booed the officials after every play for nearly 10 minutes before the infamous "Arkansas Streaker" ran out of the north end-zone and onto the field with nothing on but a thong with a rebel affixed to the front, and a hog hat. The crowd erupted as he tapped an Arkansas player on the butt and danced around for a few moments before being tackled by police personnel. This ignited the Arkansas offense as they drove 68 yards with a score in 2 plays. The Hogs punched again when the ensuing kickoff was fumbled in the end-zone and recovered by Tom Crowder. Oh yeah, they cruised to a 48-28 win. ♣ They became bowl eligible two weeks later with shut outs to Troy State and South Carolina, each game score was 23-0. ♣ T-shirts were sold during the week before the game of Arkansas and LSU, saying "Undefeated in the Rock." LSU was picked as the favorite to win the SEC West title. ♣ To start the fourth quarter, the Hogs found themselves in a 17-7 hole. They pulled within 17-14 with 6:33 on the clock as Fred Talley found the end-zone from 56 yards out. The Tigers answered though when they chewed 5:53 off the clock with 3 more points tacked to the board to lead 20-14. Things looked dismal for the Hogs as they were down by 6 with little time. The Razorbacks returned the ensuing kickoff to the 19-yard line with 40 seconds on the clock. The next play, Matt Jones found wide receiver Richard Smith for a 50-yard strike to put them on LSU's 31-yard line with 17 seconds. After an incomplete pass, Jones threw into coverage as he found DeCori Birmingham for the tying score. The rest is history. ♣ This season will never be remembered as the one with the disappointing loss to Minnesota in the Music City Bowl or the one with the thumping from Georgia in the SEC title game, but as the season where the Razorbacks once again claimed the SEC West title. The T-shirt remains true. "Undefeated in the Rock."

The Arkansas Razorback Golf teams fared well on more than one occasion this year. Andrew Dahl led the way for the men's team, as Amanda McCurdy usually held the top spot for the women's side. The men's team started off the season in September playing in Tennessee at the Ridges Intercollegiate where Adam Wing was Arkansas' high finisher with a final score of 221. ♣ The Lady'Back golf squad started off their season on the same weekend at the Lady Kat Invitational and finished 8th overall out of 16 teams competing. And after having a stellar fall season the men's team ended with a ranking of 19th in the final fall poll by teams to be ranked in the top 20. The Razorback's highest team finish was second place at the Gary Koch Intercollegiate. ♣

Golfweek/Sagarin. The

Razorbacks were one of five SEC

During the spring season, the men's team won three tournaments (tied for first in two and won one outright) including the Coastal Carolina Invite, the Border Olympics and the Billy Hitchcock Intercollegiate. The women's top performer was Amanda McCurdy an average round of 77.7 followed closely by teammate and fellow freshman Courtney Mahon both of who qualified in a US Open Qualifier. Lina

Axelsson and Melissa Murray ended the season with average rounds of 78 and 79, respectively, while Gene Johnson, Catherine Beckett, and Jennifer Norlein rounded out the rest of the team in the very low 80s.

♣ On the men's side, it was Andrew Dahl taking a leadership role as he led the team in an average round of a low 71.3. He was

who finished out the season with an average of 73.3. With both the men and women making great improvements, the sport of golf is definitely on the rise at the University of Arkansas.

If you would have entered Barnhill Arena on January 10th, you would have noticed some major differences in the former home of Razorback Basketball. You might have noticed how the gleaming hardwood floor had been concealed with layers of blue padding or maybe the strange apparatuses arranged across the floor, but it would be impossible to miss the large number of 2nd grade girls strewn about the stands in anxious anticipation. With a puff of smoke and no less than a few fireworks a new sport was born in Razorback country: Gymnastics. ✿ "The Adventure" began as the inaugural Gymback team of 11 ready and willing gymnasts lead by co-head coaches Mark and Rene Cook entered Barnhill to a crowd of 4,231 cheering Arkansas fans. According to tri-captain Dana McQuillin, the large turn out of fans had a huge impact in the first year of Razorback Gymnastics. "We have the best fans ever. No one expected a first year team to have this many fans." To the amazement of many, the student section was overflowing as University of Arkansas students rushed to support their fellow Razorbacks in the quest for the perfect 10. The Gymbacks ended the year ranked fourth in attendance nation wide. They also broke a ranking record by becoming the fastest Arkansas team to reach the top 25, with a 23rd ranking following their very first meet. ✿ Records continually were made and broken as the Gymbacks continued to improve throughout the year, breaking their goal of a 194 team score by the third meet. These records were met with cheers of enthusiasm from the Gymback crew as they faced one of the hardest schedules of any team, let alone one in their first year, as they faced defending SEC champions Georgia and national champions Alabama. "The spirit factor was definitely an important part," said tri-captain Hannah McLeod, "Being a small team, we really had to pull together. This was new for all of us." ✿ The Gymbacks came from all over the nation, from Maryland to Texas. Many had only participated individually through club competitions, but coming to Arkansas as a team was a welcoming change. "It's been a good experience. It's a little weird coming from New Jersey, but I came here because of the community," said McQuillin. ✿ Injuries became an underlying tone of the team, but the entire team persevered and continually supported fellow team members. Two team members, Kylee Small and Valerie Conroy, entered the season with knee injuries. Brooke Lawrence, the third tri-captain, ended the season with torn ACL while practicing her beam routine. Both McLeod and McQuillin agreed that injuries were part of the sport and to be expected, but were avoided at all cost. Most teams in college Gymnastics are almost double the size of the Gymback squad, and with the arising injuries, it would be expected that this season could have easily been brushed under the rug as a usually building first year. This was not the case, though. ✿ The Gymbacks of tomorrow will have a lot to live up to as the 2003 season ended with the Gymbacks finishing tied for sixth in the SEC championships. The Inaugural class of Arkansas gymnasts has truly proven to themselves, the University of Arkansas, and the nation that they will be a force to be reckoned with. The adventure may have begun today, but tomorrow the Gymbacks shall fulfill their dreams and continue the quest to become champions.

HEALTH PHYSICAL EDUCATION AND RECREATION FACILITY

THE SIX DIVISIONS OF THE HPER

CLUB SPORTS

For students who want to play on a more competitive or serious level, club teams such as soccer, rugby, ultimate frisbee and water skiing are available. The teams are student-run and are given a budget to pay for activities and competitions which may take them to many states to play against other universities.

INTRAMURALS

These competitive league sports allow students to organize themselves into teams of one gender or mixed to compete in tournaments. The goal of the program is to enhance the social, mental and physical well-being of the entire university community through recruitment, retention and education of students and personnel.

FACILITY

The HPER facility provides recreational activities which include weight lifting, swimming, racquetball, running, volleyball, badminton, basketball and more. The facility is available to all qualifying students, faculty, staff and alumni.

FITNESS/WELLNESS

The fitness/wellness department provides activities (most free to students) such as aerobics, yoga, NIA and others. The new 12,000 square foot fitness center and weight room contains 16 ellipticals, 8 treadmills, bikes, free weights, selectorized equipment and a free motion section.

OUTDOOR CONNECTION CENTER

The goal of the OCC is to meet the outdoor educational, recreational and personal development needs of the students, faculty and staff of the University of Arkansas. The OCC supplies camping, sport, and river rentals, and a new in door climbing wall gym to the university community. The Outdoor Connection Center also offers guided outdoor trips to suite the needs and interests of all skill levels and abilities.

CLUB SPORTS

Not all students have the time or the talent necessary to participate in sports at the NCAA level. Many, however, still want for the comradery of organized sports and the thrill of intercollegiate competition, along with the personal and physical benefits of athletics. This desire has been the impetus behind the creation of many of the club sports at the University of Arkansas. ❖ Club teams are a common venue for students with a shared athletic interest to organize and consolidate their sporting endeavors. Not only does a formal club have a greater likelihood of attracting and retaining members, but once a team is recognized by Bill Mock, director of club sports, they also have the opportunity to receive university funding. This financial help can often make the difference between a squad struggling to afford equipment and a well-equipped team ready to train and compete. ❖ The University of Arkansas enjoys a wide array of club teams, currently boasting 8 active sports clubs ranging from Kendo, the Japanese art of sword-fighting, to volleyball and ultimate Frisbee. In order to be recognized as a club team, membership must be open to any undergraduate or graduate student currently enrolled in at least three credit hours. Faculty and staff with a minimum of a 50% appointment are also eligible and encouraged to participate. ❖ Unlike intramural sports, where competition is limited to within the student body, club teams are able to host and to travel to competitions involving squads from other universities. Not only does this provide for a greater breadth of competitive ability, but it also fosters associations between students from different institutions who might otherwise might not have had the chance to meet. ❖ While creating a club team may be as simple as finding an interesting new sport, developing a successful squad is much more difficult. Student recruitment can be sporadic, and even those who are extremely interested are often limited in their involvement by the constraints of school or work. The newly created crew team, for example, struggled to maintain student interest through a long, cold winter where rowing was impossible, and in addition lacked adequate equipment – new boats are upwards of $15,000, far more than any club team's budget. ❖ "It's been an uphill battle," notes Scott Stafford, junior microbiology major and Crew Team President, "but when you cross the finish line, it's definitely worth it."

BIG Goals

For the Lady Razorbacks, the 2002 season proved a mixture of stunning accomplishment and bitter defeat. Although the team did not continue on to the SEC championship tournament, their season-ending performance against the LSU Tigers left a lasting impression on Arkansas fans. The battle at Baton Rouge waged on through double overtime, only to end in a direct tie between warrior athletes. ♣ The Lady'Backs did, however, leave their home pitch graced with sweet victory as they passed a tight 4-3 decision to Vanderbilt in the last home game of the year. "In soccer, to come back from being 3 goals down and pull out a win is a very hard thing to do," said junior goalkeeper Lindsay Haywood. "Our win just proved that anything can happen if you really put your mind to it." Junior forward Julie Williford helped seal that victory with the 31st goal of her career with only 2:15 left in regulation. Overall, the Lady Razorbacks finished their season 7-12-1, and 3-5-1 in SEC play. ♣ Freshman Lisa Jones added sparks to the season early on with a pair of golden goals against SEC opponent South Carolina, netting the game winner in double overtime. Despite a nagging shoulder injury, Jones was able to give her team the push they needed to claim their first win against a SEC Eastern Division opponent since 1996. ♣ Senior midfielder Erin Sampson was named to the all-Southeastern Conference second team for the second time, the first being in 1999 as a freshman. The award makes Sampson just the fourth Lady Razorback in the 10-year history of SEC soccer to earn multiple all-SEC honors. ♣ The Lady'Backs proved their determination to excel off the court as well when they accepted a National Soccer Coaches Association of America (NSCAA) team academic award for their stellar 3.12 cumulative grade point average. Reflecting on the season performance, Haywood points out, "It was really exciting to be out there playing, working well as a team, and to have so many talented freshmen able to contribute to the game." The statistics may break records, but it's these ladies' enduring dedication that is creating the legacy of Arkansas Lady'Back soccer.

FAST PITCH

"We have some ground to make up," said coach Carie Dever-Boaz, "but we're not out of it. We have so many elements that we can still control and it starts with Tennessee Tech. It's not a conference game but it is a series where we have to make some adjustments and get on a roll." The coach remained positive towards the end of a disappointing season for the team. By April 14, the team had a 19-28 overall record and 4-17 in the SEC. After meeting Tennessee Tech, and Tennessee after that, the Lady'Backs traveled to Kansas, Mississippi State, and LSU before they hosted Kentucky in the final conference series of the regular season. Arkansas traveled to Southwest Missouri State April 29, to conclude the regular season. ♣ Two of the four SEC wins came in the second game of a double-header. The first one came on March 12 against Ole Miss when Arkansas won 4-1 after losing the first game 3-2. ♣ Junior Lauren Hendrix's second home run of the season in the fourth inning was icing on the cake. Leading 1-0 thanks in part to Hendrix's heroics in the second inning, Arkansas added some insurance in fourth inning. Freshman Ruth Atkins worked out a leadoff walk and walked around the rest of the bases as Hendrix ripped a shot over the left-center fence giving Arkansas a 3-0 lead. ♣ The Lady'Backs added one more in the fifth inning when pinch runner Zenobia Davison scored. Davison entered the game to run at first base after senior Kim Eiben singled with one out to start the inning. Atkins singled to left and pinch runners Jessica Kaiser (for Atkins) and Davison moved up a bag on a wild pitch. Hendrix walked loading the bases for a sacrifice fly from senior Julie Young. Four runs was all the offense sophomore Valanna Lyons would need as she notched her fifth win of the year. Lyons went the distance with seven strikeouts and no walks in the victory. "Everything worked out well with my pitching," Lyons said. "After a couple of innings, I knew I could go the distance." Arkansas pounded out eight hits in the second game including a two-hit, two run, two RBI and one walk performance from Hendrix. ♣ The second SEC win on the end of a double-header came on March 22 against Florida when the Lady'Backs won the second game 2-1 after losing 2-1. Junior Heather Schlichtman tossed almost every inning of a doubleheader. Schlichtman took the loss in the opener throwing an eight-inning complete game. She came back with a win in game two throwing 4.2 innings, allowing two hits, two walks and striking out four.

Spirit Groups

Bring it on

More than pretty faces and lean physiques, the Razorback spirit groups play an important role in the teams' success. The spirit groups' energy-packed performances and enthusiastic cheers excite fans, which in turn motivates players. Even when the odds are against the Hogs, the cheerleaders and pom squad are able to keep the crowd involved in the game. ♣ The U of A has two cheerleading squads and 2 pom squads.

Cheer red, cheer white, and Pom red perform at the football games; cheer red and pom red perform at the basketball games; and pom white performs at the baseball games. When watching these groups perform, the cheers, stunts, and dance routines may appear effortless.

However, this illusion is achieved only after many hours of practice. Both spirit groups practice about two hours a day. When asked to describe the most difficult aspect of being involved in a spirit group, Pom squad member Angel Germany responded, "The time commitment...We don't have an off season. We do football and basketball." Each member also incorporates exercise and weight lifting into their schedule to maintain weight and strength. ♣ Physically demanding and time consuming, cheering is now recognized as a sport, as well as an art. National cheer competitions are held each year to display the precision and confidence of college spirit groups. In addition to becoming a nationally competitive sport, cheering has transcended gender. This year there are 6 males on each razorback cheerleading squad. Cheerleader Frank Watson commented on the stigma attached to male cheerleaders: ♣ "As a male cheerleader I am faced with many stereotypes. At one time I was a person who also believed those stereotypes; however, I've learned to respect cheerleaders. What we do takes a lot of time, effort, and athleticism. I encourage anyone who does not view cheerleaders as athletes to try it for a day."

POWERFUL STROKES

Since the swimming and diving program originated in the 1970s, teams have successfully competed and produced Olympic-caliber athletes along the way.

During the 2002-2003 year, several athletes continued that tradition with strong performances all season. The team featured junior Peggy Stoner and sophomore Zsuzsa Csobanki who both completed competition at US Nationals and put an end to the University of Arkansas Lady Razorbacks' swimming season on April 12, with the 50-meter freestyle at the IU Natatorium in Indianapolis, Indiana.

✿ Stoner finished 41st at the national meet with a solid time of 27.02, with Csobanki landing right behind at 46th in 27.09. "Both Peggy and Zsuzsa had very good swims, but didn't quite meet their goals," said Arkansas head swimming coach Anne Goodman James. "The week before nationals, we had some very solid swims coming off of a third taper. Everything in our training was peaked toward the Southeastern Conference Championships, then the NAAs. Trying to stretch that out a few more weeks is always a real challenge." ✿ Both Stoner and Csobanki fell short of qualifying for finals action, but still have fond memories of the 2002-03 season to hang their hats on. Both were participants at the NCAA championships in Auburn, Alabama, and were a part of Arkansas' all-American 200-yard freestyle relay team that finished 15th at the championships. ✿ In February, team ended on a strong finish at the SEC Championships, hosted by Auburn University. The 400-yard freestyle relay brought in a fifth place finish for the University of Arkansas Lady Razorback swimming and diving team in the final event of the Southeastern Conference Championships at Auburn University, solidifying an eighth-place team finish. Junior Mandy Moran had the best performance of her University of Arkansas Lady Razorback career on the first day of competition, finishing in fifth place in three-meter diving with a total of 506.80. ✿ In the fall, the Lady'Backs finished strong at the Indiana Invitational held November 22-24 in Bloomington, Indiana, due in part to sophomore Whitney Lynn's effort that would continue all season. She proved that not much could keep her down as she provided a powerful finish in the 1,650-yard freestyle, landing in the eighth spot. Lynn performed a season best in the 1650-yard freestyle preliminaries with a time of 16:45.00, earning her a fourth place spot in Arkansas' all-time best list. Lynn also held the third, fifth and sixth best marks in that event.

MAKING A RACKET

Collegiate tennis often receives less recognition as a team sport. Although football, basketball, and track are the major sports at the university, tennis requires just as much hard work and dedication. The University of Arkansas Razorback and Ladyback tennis teams both put forth tremendous effort during the 2002-2003 season. ♣ April 6th the no. 31 Hogs demonstrated their resiliency by winning against the no. 33 Mississippi State Bulldogs 5-2; ending their four game losing streak. Head Coach Robert Cox was enthused by the team's tenacity throughout the game. "We came in here today with a four game losing streak and we needed to get a win," Cox said. "Our guys came out today and played a tough Mississippi State team very well." The men's team had an overall record 11-13 and an SEC record of 2-9. The team went on to compete in the SEC championship tournament in Oxford, MS. ♣ Despite the Ladyback tennis team's less than perfect record of 8-13 overall and 0-11 in the SEC, the team still had victories to celebrate. On March 6th the 69th ranked Ladybacks beat 34th ranked Tulane 4-3. In the game, 47th ranked doubles sophomore Monika Duybicz and junior Megan Ferreria won at no. 3 doubles, 9-8 (5). After enduring a lengthy singles match, Anna Duybicz clinched the match and won the game 6-7 (3), 6-4, 6-3 under the unstruction of chach Kevin Platt. When the teams were not on the road competing in matches, they spent hours practicing in the newly remodeled U of A tennis facilities. ♣ Both tennis teams utilized the Dills Indoor Tennis Center and the UA Varsity Outdoor Courts. The Indoor/Outdoor Tennis Complex allowed players to workout and host matches in any weather condition. The Center was expanded in 2002 to include six courts, locker room facilities, 96 new lights, and insulation system, and more.

The Razorback Track Team had quite the successful season this year! With the men's team winning the title of National Champions and both the men's and women's teams being the SEC Champions, track athletes represented the University very well this season. The teams were well supported by cheering fans, and the members of the team were very positive towards each other's performances. Jessica Johnson, a high jump competitor on the team, said, "Track and field is generally considered a sport for individuals. I think that our Lady' Back track team is probably one of the most unique and impressive teams because it has turned a usually individual-oriented sport into something team-driven. At the 2003 Indoor Championships, a number of our teammates doubled and tripled, even quadrupled up on events to try to score as many points as possible. Some people have to make huge sacrifices to run long distance race after long distance race, mile after mile. I think our team has succeeded because it is full of people willing to put in the work and then, to step up to the line and compete." When asked what the attitude of the guys was before the National Championship meet, John McDonnell, coach of the men's team, said, "It's been two years since we've won a national championship. They're motivated and I think they'll compete well from top to bottom. I think that every guy in the meet has a chance to place and it will be tough in 5,000 because that's a loaded event, but we have five good guys in there and there are only eight places. It's been a while since we've had that type of a team, where every one of them could score. This is as good of a team we've had in the last seven or eight years. The last time we won it in 2000, we scraped by. We were a decent team, but not a great team. When the players and coaches are all supportive of each other, they are successful on and off the track." Johnson said, "I am proud of how hard our coaches work and how much they care about our school and our health. Our team has a lot of things going on off the track that are impressive and I think those things carry over into our lives and that leads to success on the track."

The Arkansas Track & Field Indoor Team grabbed the national crown once again after not having done so since the fall of 2000. ✿ After a second place standing in the pre-season polls, the Hogs were quick to grab several automatic and provisional qualifiers. At the SEC quad meet, Arkansas was able to automatically qualify a fast DMR team that consisted of Daniel Lincoln, Josh Landreth, Robbie Stevens, and Alistair Cragg. At the Missouri Southern Invite, Richard Smith claimed first in the long jump with a career-best mark of 25-8. Ramon Washington came in second with another career-best leap of 25-6.75. Jaanus Uudmae also earned a career-best jump as he took third with a 25-0 jump. ✿ All-American Alistair Cragg then broke the national collegiate record in the 3,000m with a time of 7:45.22 at the Boston Indoor Games. The previous record of 7:46.03 was held by Colorado's Adam Goucher in 1998. ✿ The Hogs then traveled to Nebraska to the Husker Invitational but struggled to gain qualifiers for the National Indoor Meet. "It wasn't a good meet for us," Arkansas head coach John McDonnell said. "We're in a lot better shape than we competed." ✿ Rebounding in a big way, the track team moved up in the polls to number 1 in the nation as they competed at the Tyson Invitational in Fayetteville. Michael Thomas set a new school record in the 60m Hurdles with a new time of 6.69, eclipsing his old record of 7.74. Sophomore Ahmad Carroll also broke his own school record of 6.69 in the 60m dash, bettering it to a 6.67. ✿ The top-ranked track team then traveled to the University of Florida in search of their seventh-consecutive and 11th overall indoor SEC conference crown against several nationally ranked conference rivals. Arkansas claimed the crown easily with 120 points, outlasting Florida's 90 points. ✿ That was not the only crown, however, that the Arkansas Track team was in search for. They wanted number 37. And they got it. Pouring in points from all over, Arkansas scored 52 points at the 2003 National Indoor Track & Field Meet and easily pounded second place Auburn with 28 points. Nearly doubling the points of the second place team. The Mac-Attack is back.

On the Attack

In defending the Razorback tradition, the 2002 Ladyback volleyball team ended the season as the SEC Western division champions for the eighth time since the program began nine years ago. The team finished second in conference behind rival #3 Florida (34-3) with an overall season record of 27-6. The NCAA Power Ranking ranked the Ladybacks number 18 in the nation. Head Coach Chris Poole described the season as being a very successful year. ✿ Coach Poole emphasized how the height of the Ladyback players proved to be a strength to the team. The average height of the starting players was 6'1. The tallest player on the team had a height of 6'5. The height of the team allowed the Ladybacks to play a very physical game up on the net. ✿ Despite the strengths of the Ladybacks, the team was unable to defeat long time rival, Florida. Arkansas met Florida in the SEC finals, but lost to them in four games. The Ladybacks have played Florida in seven of the last nine SEC finals. The last time Arkansas won was in 1997. Coach Poole explained how the Ladybacks approach every match against Florida with confidence. They tried to serve aggressively in an attempt to shut out Florida's offense. Poole recognized that the Florida volleyball program was further along in the traditions they had been able to establish. ✿ The Ladybacks worked on establishing some of their own traditions. One tradition that Arkansas initiated was being included among the top ranked volleyball programs in the nation. The team was still developing. They had been rebuilding since the 1997-98 seasons when several strong players left. The upperclassmen of this season's Ladybacks were successful in helping to rebuild the team and put Arkansas in the top 20. "This team was one of the best groups I've had in getting along together and working hard." The team captains were seniors Libby Windell and Michelle Coens. Overall, the Ladybacks had four players graduate in May, but Coach Poole recognized that the team had a good nucleus of girls that will return. ✿ Currently the coaches, including Assistant coaches Holly Watts, Pavlina Steffkova; Volunteer Assistant coach Kurt Matthews and Administrative Assistant Chandra Hicks, are recruiting for the 2004 season. The volleyball program received twelve full scholarships, and the coaches usually worked a year ahead for recruiting future Ladyback volleyball players. ✿ The Ladybacks played all of their home games at Barnhill Arena. Coach Poole expressed how the team felt very fortunate to have had their own facilities for the volleyball program. "We have the nicest facility for volleyball. Most teams have to share with the basketball teams," explained Coach Poole. Coach Poole acknowledged how volleyball was a huge spectator sport, but the SEC is lacking in fan support. The games were intense and quick moving, giving the spectator much to watch and cheer on.

KERRY ALLEN

She's had her share of injuries and rehabilitation sessions, and now Kerry Allen, 22, will be able to help others get back to their fullest physical potential. Allen is a kinesiology and exercise science major with an emphasis in biomechanics. She has never broken any bones, she said, but she has had other injuries, including a torn hamstring muscle and an injured left knee, both required some rehabilitation sessions. "I'll now be more able to relate to the patients," she said. ✿ Allen plans to attend a physical therapy school and enter a doctorate in physical therapy program this fall. From there, she'll be able to help people recover from injuries and show people that physical activity and proper nutrition are the keys to good health, she said. ✿ Since childhood, Allen had visions of entering the medical field, although her earliest visions were to become a veterinarian. This changed during her senior year in high school when she took an anatomy and physiology class and learned she wanted a career working with the human body. ✿ Now, her ultimate goal is to work with Olympic-caliber athletes. The goal is far from unachievable because Allen herself is no stranger to athletics. ✿ Her grandmother taught her to play tennis and to swim. In high school, with no swimming team, she focused on tennis, until her coach introduced her to running. Then she joined the track and cross-country team. Allen continued running through college, although for the first two years, she ran as a hobby and built up stamina to join the Razorback team as a walk-on in her junior year at the UA. Before then, she had run the Hogeys Marathon, scoring first place; a Springfield, Mo., Marathon, scoring first place; and the Boston Marathon, scoring 49th place. She also won the Arkansas Road Runner Club of America Top Female

Award in 2000. ✿ "I would describe myself as very determined and motivated," said Allen, the daughter of Steven and Barbara Allen of Tahlequah, Okla. "I'm independent but able to work with others." ✿ This ability to cooperate with others has led Allen to participate in several extracurricular activities, including the UA Kinesiology Club; the Student Alumni Board; the catholic Campus Ministry; the Humphreys Hall Senate and the Gibson Hall Senate; the Residence Interhall Congress, as well as University Programs; and the Alpha Phi Omega co-ed service fraternity. ✿ Her community involvement includes projects with Gamma Beta Phi, the Golden Key International Honor Society and the National Society of Collegiate Scholars. She already has an expansive list of professional work experience, spanning from work as a rehabilitation lab technician for a Springdale clinic, to working as a saleswoman at the Smoothie King nutrition store. ✿ "A strong view of my family is that life is not a piece of cake, and you must work hard to get where you want to go," Allen said. "This value has led me down the path I have walked and continue to travel. I know I must have ambitious goals and a positive attitude to go far."

MATT FRANCIS

Matt Francis, sold immediately on the University of Arkansas and its rich traditions, said he was convinced to come to the UA after visiting the campus and receiving a Chancellor's Scholarship. ♣ But now that he has graduated with a degree in Engineering from the J. William Fulbright College of Arts and Sciences, the Jenks, Oklahoma native said he is off to Atlanta. ♣ Traveling might be in his blood, as he was born in Kalamazoo, Michigan and grew up in New Jersey, Dallas and then in Tulsa. Both his parents, Tony and Laura, are from Arkansas. ♣ But as much as traveling has factored into his life, Matt has music ringing through his ears during the years at the UA. The May 2003 graduate ended his time with a 3.85 G.P.A. while being involved fulltime in the Hogwild basketball band and later in the marching Razorback Drumline and university concert bands. He said he loves all traditions associated with UA games, pep rallies and pregame shows.

♣ The 23-year-old also kept busy doing community service projects for Etta-Kappa-Nu, the electrical engineering fraternity, and with Gamma Beta Phi, an honor society. Matt was vice president of Etta-Kappa-Nu and IEEE, another electrical engineering society. The dean-list student also found time to do work as a research assistant in the physics department and worked with Hewlett-Packard Corp. in Texas for cooperation education credit. ♣ Other than music, involvement in clubs and work, Matt said his interests range from photography to restoring old cars. But the Eagle Scout said his short-term plans include attending graduate school in electrical engineering or possibly law school. Long-term dreams include starting his own technology-based company. ♣ As any other college student, the UA has had some impact on Matt's life. He credits the UA for expanding his people and leadership skills. ♣ "Since attending the university, I have become a much more open-minded person. I've learned how to achieve goals and fine-tuned leadership skills, which while useful in academics, have proven invaluable in the "real world." ♣ He has experienced trials and tribulations at the UA, he said, but "I still love the university. No matter where I land after graduation, I will always be a Razorback." ♣ He has defined himself, he said. ♣ "I found a profession I could enjoy and excel in. In working with people from all backgrounds, I learned how to be an effective communicator and leader, and made many great friendships along the way," he said. ♣ Making friends is one experience at the UA he will miss. ♣ "I'm going to miss the sense of community among the students, watching the university change through the seasons, and all the wonderful Razorback traditions," Matt said.

APRIL GROSSMAN

Raising show sheep for nine years on a farm in Oklahoma prepared April Grossman for the future, she said, with the experiences teaching her how valuable dependability and responsibility can be in the world. ✿ Her parents, Steve and Kelly, shaped her along the way, and then the UA changed her life. ✿ "The University of Arkansas, and all of my experiences here, have helped steer me in the right direction," Grossman wrote in her Razorback Classic application. "The support network I have is amazing, considering the fact that I did not know anyone when I arrived in 1999. Overcoming the unfamiliarity of a new place, and truly making it my home, has given me such a renewed sense of confidence. ✿ The poultry science major was a residence assistant for five semesters, through which she planned a clothing drive, a Halloween carnival and various fund-raisers for area charities. ✿ "Being a Resident Assistant on campus has enriched my experience tremendously. Not only have I built relationships with people in my major and in my college, but the RA job has also allowed me to meet so many people I would have not known otherwise," she said. "I would say this has shown me how valuable people and friendships are, and this is one of the most important lessons I will take with me."

✿ Meeting people and visiting new places is a passion for the 21-year-old, who has seen Mexico, Japan and the Philippines.

✿ Her other hobbies include spending time with friends, singing, cooking and going to concerts. Academics also played a part, as Grossman earned a 4.0 G.P.A. for three semesters, ending with a 3.67. She received a $1,000 scholarship for being named

Dale Bumpers College Ambassador. She received a UA scholarship for seven semesters, and a poultry science matching scholarship. She also won the Tyson, Hubbard and Richard H.

Forsythe scholarships. ✿ Scholarships enticed her to the UA, she said, but she fell in love when she first set foot on campus. ✿ "Even though I was enrolled in another university, it just seemed like this is where I was supposed to spend four years of my life, and I think it is one of the best decisions I have ever made," Grossman said. ✿ Her future decisions include graduate school for a master's in student affairs or higher education and maybe law school for agricultural law, she said. ✿ But one thing she didn't grasp was college coming to an end. ✿ "I wish that I had known how quickly the time flies by," Grossman said. "Even though I have been told that from day one, I did not really believe it. Now I am staring graduation in the face, and it does not seem real."

✿ Kristin Netterstrom

THAD HARDIN

Thad Hardin, a microbiology major with a 3.96 GPA, said the secret to success in college is prioritizing tasks. ♣ "A lot of things get turned in at the last moment possible, but they get turned in," Hardin said. "You also have to be willing to sacrifice things. My advice would be to start slow and don't overdo it, because there's nothing worse than being in over your head." ♣ But Hardin also tried to find time to enjoy the college life. ♣ "I love the Hogs and enjoy following them," he said. "I enjoy doing things with my friends. I believe in and enjoy the activities I participate in on campus." ♣ Many of his affiliations stemmed from his joining the Intrafraternity Council as a sophomore, he said. And the most rewarding activity for Hardin was being a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity. ♣ "It has taught me responsibility and forced me to mature as a student and a person," he said. "Also the connections and friends I have made will be with me throughout life." ♣ He hopes to attend medical school in Little Rock and eventually plans to be a pediatrician in a rural community such as the one where he grew up – McGehee. The UA was a good experience for someone from a small town, he said. ♣ "It has opened my eyes to the diversity of the world that I didn't know existed while I was in southeast Arkansas," he said. ♣ Hardin, who was nominated by Sigma Chi fraternity, was also involved with the Student Alumni Board, Interfraternity Council, Order of Omega, Mortar Board, Up Til Dawn, National Society of Collegiate Scholars, Golden Key International Honor Society, University Leadership Retreat Executive Planning Committee and Gamma Beta Phi. ♣ He was also the recipient of several scholarships, including the National Coca-Cola Scholarship, Mary Maier Chancellor's Scholarship and the International Sigma Chi Scholarship. He was named to the Chancellor's List and the National Dean's List. ♣ Hardin's volunteer activities included Habitat for Humanity, Big Brothers Big Sisters and the Fayetteville Boys and Girls Club.

MEREDITH MAYES

Joining the Student Alumni Board was something Meredith Mayes said she'll never regret doing while a student at the UA. The board helps coordinate activities with alumni to keep the Razorback tradition strong after graduation.

Opportunities abounded in the SAB to make connections with interesting people on and around campus, said Mayes, a 22-year-old senior from Fayetteville.

✿ "I would love to come back to work in the alumni program," she said. Mayes herself has had connections for years with the UA. Her mother works as a health science kinesiology instructor. Her uncle works as a researcher for the graduate college, her grandfather is a retired professor from the Walton College of Business and one of her aunts used to teach French at the UA.

✿ When Mayes was younger, she said she would often accompany her mother to work at the HPER building. ✿ "I thought that was the campus," Mayes said with a laugh. She is the daughter of Rick and Susan Mayes of Fayetteville. It was only when Meredith seriously began thinking about college life that she noticed how expansive the UA was, she said. But now, Mayes has spread her roots throughout campus and the world, majoring in Middle Eastern Studies and International Relations, with a minor in French. The major, she said, has been a "big eye-opener" to other cultures beyond American. The French minor was no quirk. ✿ "My aunt was a big influence for me to go into French," Mayes said. She has studied the language for seven years throughout high school and college. ✿ French, however, is not the only language she has learned to speak. She learned Arabic when traveling abroad in the summer of 2001 to the University of Morocco as part of a nine-week intensive Arabic program.

✿ Although she is uncertain what she would like her first job to be, she said she is interested in keeping with international relations or some type of event planning. She is considering earning a master's degree in higher education in the fall at the UA. ✿ She describes herself as goal-oriented and organized, saying she is one of those people that continues to push herself for the next highest academic and extracurricular level. ✿ Mayes has been involved in several activities while at the UA, including the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority, Razorback Belles, Arkansas Razorback Booster Club, Golden Key National Honor Society, Cardinal XXX, Mortar Board, Gamma Beta Phi, and the National Society of Collegiate Scholars. ✿ She received a King Fahd Middle East Studies undergraduate scholarship in 2001, was nominated to be a student ambassador for the College of Education, nominated to be a student orientation leader for the UA, and has been published in a pamphlet for the UA library research guide. ✿ Mayes' community involvement includes helping with the UA Campaign for the 21st Century kick-off, being an English conversation partner for two international students—one from Jordan and the other from Saudi Arabia, helping with projects for the Razorback Booster Club, and promoting a national reading program at local elementary schools for the Razorback Belles. ✿ Her hobbies include dancing, learning foreign languages, traveling and learning about culture.

✿ Rebecca Worster

DAVID NELSON

The Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity at the UA will be the biggest campus memory for David Nelson, a 22-year-old chemical engineering major. He was in the fraternity for four years and served positions as the Rush captain, sergeant-of-arms and J-Board chair member. Being in the fraternity gave Nelson the chance to meet a variety of people and mature as a person, he said. ✿ "I have developed myself academically, socially and emotionally," he said. "Academically, I increased my capacity to learn through interacting with professors and peers. Socially, I had the opportunity to meet people from all walks of life. Emotionally, I developed strong friendships that will last a lifetime." ✿ Being in the fraternity also gave him the springboard to participate in other campus extracurricular activities. ✿ Throughout his college career, Nelson participated for four years in the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, four years in the National Society of Collegiate Scholars, three years in Gamma Beta Phi honor society, two years in Tau Beta Pi Engineering honor society, two years in Partner's Club, and one year each in Phi Kappa Phi honor society and the order of Omega Honor Society. ✿ Nelson, the son of Larry and Jan Nelson of Fort Smith, chose engineering because "I heard it was the hardest major," he said. ✿ "I really chose it for the challenge," he said. Nelson did have some background into the field, as he took all the math and science classes he could in high school. ✿ But unlike some students who will go through a change in majors at least once during their academic career, Nelson stuck with his from the beginning. Why? ✿ "I built relationships with the students and faculty," he said, adding that his networking made the major more interesting. ✿ Whichever comes first and is more inviting, a job or graduate school, is the road Nelson will take, he said. ✿ One thing, however, is certain about his future. "I would like to apply the knowledge and skills that I have developed at the UA toward helping others through my participation with non-profit organizations such as the Boys Club and Habitat for Humanity," he said. ✿ Nelson helped these and other groups throughout his time at the UA.. During the 2001-2002 Christmas break, he was certified as a substitute teacher for the Fort Smith public school system. During the break, he taught the fourth grade at Trusty Elementary School. He was also a coach for two years for the Boys Club Rinky-Dink Basketball team; organized a trash pickup, a peer tutor center and a canned food drive in Tau Beta Pi, coordinated a toy drive between Pi Kappa Alpha and Christ on campus for two years, and participated for two years in both the Race For the Cure and the Bikes, Blues and BBQ celebration in Fayetteville. ✿ His hobbies often roll into his academic realm, he said, mentioning the several honor organizations which he was involved. But he also played flag football, Ultimate Frisbee, basketball and volleyball intramurals. He was in the Sierra Club Student Coalition, working to inform others about environmental issues and the Partner's Club, participating with handicapped individuals at a pool party and a dance. ✿ He also participated in internships, including one at EAST-MAN chemical company in Tennessee.

MELLISSA NGUYEN

Life has its setbacks, but Mellissa Nguyen takes those she stumbles on and turns them around into positive learning experiences. ✿ "Life is filled with bumps on the road, it just depends on whether or not you can overcome those bumps," said Nguyen, the 22-year-old daughter of Erick and Lilly Nguyen of Fort Smith. ✿ When she entered the UA realm, she encountered one disappointment, Nguyen said. She had been a top student at her high school, but the academic life at the UA led her to learn the world is much larger, with other students who are as good and sometimes even better in some ways than she is. ✿ But, "It gave me more of a drive to keep on working," she said. And so she did. ✿ By the end of her senior year at the UA, Nguyen had a resume listing years of participation in extracurricular activities, including the Alpha Delta Pi sorority, Razorback Belles, Union Governing Board, University Leadership Retreat, Student Leadership Coalition, Code and Creed committee, Emerging Leaders, and Resident Assistant Staff Council representative for Futrall Hall. ✿ The last activity, her experience as an RA for two years for Futrall Hall, will remain one of the most outstanding memories of Nguyen's life at the UA, she said. She was able to help students with their lives, both as students and as people growing in modern society. ✿ Yet Nguyen, an information systems major with a minor in pre-medicine, has done much more than work hard with extracurricular activities.

✿ She began her journey to the UA as a "Fulbright baby" but ended as a "Walton baby," she said, describing the two colleges Fulbright College of Arts and Sciences and the Sam M. Walton College of Business she has been involved in while making her choice of academic major. The major she graduated with was actually her fifth decision. ✿ She plans to attend the UA for Medical Sciences in Little Rock so she can study emergency medicine. And she hopes to obtain a master's degree in business administration in the area of healthcare consulting or healthcare administration, she said. ✿ "Even though I would like to practice medicine, I would eventually like to work in hospital administration so I can make decisions that effect changes," she said. "I would also like to go on a mission trip to an area that is in desperate need of medical attention." ✿ In her non-academic time, she has volunteered as a Locks of Love hair donor, at Veterans Administration Hospital, for Faith Through Action caregivers, for Book Hogs promoting reading to elementary school children, for Make a Difference day, for Student's Day of Caring, for a United Way/ Health South Halloween Carnival at the Jones Center for Families in Springdale, the Fayetteville Women's Battered Shelter, the St. Thomas Aquinas Rummage Sale, and for a Salvation Army Angel Tree project. ✿ Her roots have spread diversely into her professional job experiences. She has worked for UA Housing as a First Year Experience Resident Assistant, and as a work-study for the UA public relations office, the Principals of Biology Lab class, and the Microbiological Media Prep class. ✿ "I always try to do something a little bit different," said Nguyen, who describes herself as outgoing and determined to stick with any project to the end. "This is the only time you can diversify yourself, before you get into regular grad school or into a routine job."

BARRETT PETTY

Faith and education have been important aspects of Barrett Petty's life before and after the University of Arkansas, and the West Helena native wants to incorporate what he has gained from his experiences as a sports agent. ✿ He has learned to endure, to be strong, he said, and has overcome the naivete he had when he arrived in Fayetteville as a freshman. But the main thing he learned was being independent and away from home, four-and-a-half hours away where he is one of eight children for Elijah Petty and Emma Petty. ✿ Along with enduring, involvement has been key for Petty as he tutors Spanish, math and business for the athletics department, and then devotes time as a minister at Abundant Life Christian Fellowship. ✿ "My Christianity and my relationship with Jesus Christ is very important to me, it is a key critical thing, and it is something that just because I have done so well and maybe not be so politically correct to acknowledge that publicly, I do," Petty said. ✿ "It's a personal calling," he said about his church involvement, but he didn't know if he would go any further. ✿ "I don't know where, but I eventually will. I'm just taking this step by step," he said. ✿ The Black Students Association past president and treasurer said his future ambition is to "become one of the biggest sports agents in the country." ✿ "Some people think my future sports career and [church involvement] will conflict, but I don't see how. I don't see how it might conflict my integrity if my goals are aligned with good morals." ✿ Petty also finds time for being the conference chair and vice president for the Arkansas Black Students Association and president of the National Association of Black Accountants, and part of the Walton College Dean's Student Advisory Board as well as other organizations. ✿ But sports is also a current passion of Petty's, he said, proven by a 26-hour train trip to the French Open in Paris. ✿ "I was like a little kid in a candy store," he wrote in his Razorback Classic application. "I saw professional tennis players in person. ... It was a very exciting time of my life." ✿ "That's how much I love tennis," he said of the trip last summer. ✿ But other than a tennis fanatic, Petty said he could be described as very mature for his age, with people saying he has an "old man spirit" for what the 21-year-old says. ✿ "I'm very mature for my age," he added. "I'm very wise, yet I could have a lot of fun with you. You get to know me, I get to know you. But yet I'm not willing to compromise myself for anything."

KEVIN SHIPP

Pledging Kappa Sigma fraternity led Morrilton native Kevin Shipp to become more involved in the UA campus. His ambition and interest in the university carried him to the office of Associated Student Government vice president for his senior year. ✿ "They kind of opened the doors to all the other things," Shipp said of his fraternity. ✿ As vice president, Shipp said he has met so many people – students, faculty and staff – whom he would not have met otherwise. But such a prominent position on campus does not come without its share of challenges. ✿ "I thought I could come in here and make everyone happy, and I learned really quick you can't do that," said Shipp, who is majoring in finance. "But it's good to have differing opinions. Even if they don't agree with the way I'm ruling or decisions I make, I'd rather them just respect me." ✿ Another important aspect of college life Shipp learned through his many involvements was time management. He kept a trusty palm pilot with him and prioritized his schedule, being sure to make time for studying.

✿ "You can overfill your plate really quick, I think," he said. "Remember why you're really up here and don't let that get away, because grades really are more important – and graduating." ✿ But Shipp also said he learned outside the classroom, becoming an effective and fair leader. ✿ "Leaders don't just lead all of the time," he said. "They also have to be able to listen and reason with all different types of people and opinions." ✿ Shipp maintained a 3.52 GPA during his time at the

UA and plans to pursue a master's of business administration degree, although he might put that off for a year or two to gain some work experience. Someday, he said, he hopes to be a CEO and eventually a U.S. senator. ✿ Shipp was nominated for a Razorback Classic by both Kappa Sigma fraternity and ASG. He has also been involved with the New Greek Council, Student Alumni Board, University Programs, Arkansas Booster Club, Golden Key National Honor Society, Cardinal XXX Honor Society, Gamma Beta Phi, Campus Council and Order of Omega. ✿ He has been awarded several honors, including Outstanding UA Male Sophomore in 2001, Who's Who Among American College Students, Dean's List and the Mortar Board Honor Society. His scholarships include the Ethel Harper Phillips Finance Scholarship, University Scholarship and the National Society of Collegiate Scholars Scholarship. ✿ Shipp was also involved in community service through Race for the Cure, Richardson Center adopt a child for Christmas program and Easter egg hunt, Arkansas Children's Hospital Phone-a-Thon, Students' Day of Caring and the Arkansas Highway Cleanup.

RAMON WASHINGTON

In his application to be a Razorback Classic, Ramon Washington said to be successful in life, he wants a loving family and an exciting career. ✿ "I set goals for myself, not to achieve fame or lots of money, but to simply be successful at everything I do," he said. "I want to be the best, and as long as I reach for the stars always, I will be successful in all facets of my life."

✿ Washington, a member of the Razorback track and field team, described himself as a "computer and technology geek." A native of Collierville, Tenn., he majored in computer engineering with a minor in math. He has a GPA of 3.4. ✿ "I have grown so much since the beginning of my collegiate academic career," he said. "The U of A has given me opportunities never imagined. I will forever be grateful for the wonderful memories and exciting opportunities the university has given me – academically, athletically, socially and professionally." ✿ One of the opportunities the UA offered him was being one of the less than 10 percent of applicants to be chosen for an internship for the U.S.

Department of Defense in Fort Meade, Md. ✿ Washington also said he is grateful for the knowledge he has learned at the UA that can help him guide others along their journeys in life.

✿ "The world is truly an oyster filled with precious jewels," he wrote. "The faculty, administrators and other staff (and students too) have taught me this."

✿ During his stay at the UA, Washington, who was sponsored by Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity Inc.,

was also involved in Golden Key International Honor Society, the Student Alumni Board, Student Ambassadors, the All-Student Judiciary Board, the Transit, Parking and Traffic Committee, the National Society of Collegiate Scholars, and the National Society of Black Engineers. ✿ Washington received the Chancellor's Scholarship and the Kraft Foods

Scholarship. He also received several awards, including the NSBE Fellow Scholar and Torchbearer award, Dupont Award for Academic Excellence, the Brandon Burlsworth Scholar-Athlete Award, the UA Volunteer Spirit Award and the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Award. He was also named to the Southeastern Conference

Scholar-Athlete Honor Roll and was an NCAA All-American for his efforts on the Razorback track and field team. ✿ His volunteer activities included Bowl for Kids' Sake, Habitat for Humanity and the National Conference for Community and Justice Walk-a-Thon.

✿ Find your name on the following pages of students listed in alphabetical order.

✿ Every so often a student discovers that the Chi Omega Greek Theater is the perfect spot to pass a relaxing afternoon. Sheltered by natural pine hedges, its quiet lawn is tailor made for reading a book, eating lunch, or even sneaking a nap.

Before last weekend, the only thing he'd ever burned was a CD.

Although fire fighters do everything they can to prevent burns, more than 2.5 million burn injuries occur in North America each year. Most could be prevented.

To learn more about our "Don't Get Burned" campaign, please visit www.IAFFBurnFund.org.

This message is brought to you by the International Association of Fire Fighters. Harold A. Schaitberger, General President

CLOSING

With the close of the 2002-2003 school year also comes the closing and completion of this book. Although there was no outstanding factor that set this year apart from any other, it is important to remember that the number one goal of the University was achieved. Degrees were earned and students graduated. ✿ While the freshmen got swept up in their new found independence, the sophomores reveled in not being freshmen, and the juniors seemed to lose all sense of responsibility in varying degrees of burnout. All the while, the graduating seniors began to look past the details of daily life for the first time. For most of them, the impact of what was happening set in like never before. The real world was drawing nearer as the countdown to graduation day wound down. ✿ This rotation circulates with every passing year as new students come in and old students go out. It seems routine, and it is. However, it is profound.

✿ The University is something akin to a well-oiled machine that everyone depends on but few take note of. While it was easy to get caught up in the little details of the University such as an expensive parking ticket or a frustrating professor, it is important to step back and look at the big picture. We are a University that exists as group of buildings set atop a large hill in the northwest corner of the state of Arkansas located near the center of a large and powerful nation. Then, it is rather amazing that thousands of people came together at this place for one common goal—to educate and be educated and to give or receive degrees for the knowledge gained. For many, this is the begining of dreams coming true. When one looks at the University in this way, then the 2002-2003 school year was not common at all, it was outstanding. ✿
